

THE TRAILS

Volume 4 Issue 10

Orange Park Community Association

October 2005

Near the top of The Irvine Ranch®, just east of the city of Orange, the scenery becomes more rugged, even wild in places. Mountains and ridgelines frame the landscape, meadows and valleys and parklands lie below. More than 22,000 acres here dominate the "Orange sphere of influence"--an area larger than the city itself that one day may be annexed and incorporated into the city.

In Fall 2003, the Irvine Company made its latest and most detailed development proposals for the hills east of the City of Orange. In its entirety, almost 4,000 homes are envisioned, located on both sides of the 241 toll-road at the "Chapman Avenue/Santiago Canyon Road" offramp. This 1,500-acre development would be adjacent to, and impact severely, both Irvine Park and Irvine Lake. The entire area is surrounded by large tracts of land donated by the Irvine Company to be permanently set aside from development. These lands are part of one of the most biologically important open space areas in the entire state.

In October 2000, the Irvine Company received approval of its general plan to develop "Santiago Hills-Phase Two" (SHII). Chris Koontz, then a 19-year-old college student, filed a California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) lawsuit. The settlement agreement arising from this lawsuit provided for a number of environmental protections.

The actual construction of this phase, 1,746 homes on 496 acres, was delayed until further approvals of tract maps and a runoff management plan (ROMP). The Irvine Company is now seeking this approval, and hopes that construction permits will now be issued so that grading and general construction activities can begin.

In addition, the Irvine Company is asking the Orange City Council to approve an additional 2,400 homes on 1,000 more acres, including areas directly contiguous to Irvine Lake. This is referred to as the "East Orange Planned Community." The draft Environmental Impact Report was released in late October 2004.

The current East Orange Project will cause:

1. Fragmentation of habitat for wide-ranging species like the mountain lion.
2. Destruction of habitat within one of the most endangered wild places in California, including seasonal ponds with spadefoot toads.
3. Increased urban-rural interfaces near development edges will increase chances for harmful contact between wildlife, pets, urban pests, and humans, resulting in more incidents with coyotes and mountain lions.
4. Increased urban run-off from roads and driveways into Irvine Lake via Santiago Creek, which supplies drinking water for Villa Park; and into the already over-burdened San Diego Creek watershed, which empties into Newport Bay.
5. Pesticide and fertilizer runoff from the proposed golf course along Santiago Creek, into Irvine Lake.
6. Extensive grading of the natural contours of land, destroying vistas.
7. Wanton destruction of animal habitats on the banks of rivers and lakes, and mitigation relies excessively on creation of replacement habitat.
8. Increased air pollution (especially particulates from diesel exhaust) caused by grading equipment and trucks, by the estimated additional 50,000 vehicle trips per day in the area, and by increased electricity generation to service these new communities.
9. Increased traffic noise in the Open Space Preserves in the orange hills area.
10. Impacts from measures to reduce fire danger and increase fire-fighting infrastructure.
11. Loss of a popular road-biking, hiking, and equestrian trail area due to increased traffic and probable widening of Santiago Canyon Road.
12. Light pollution of night skies caused by proposed illuminated playing fields and residential street lighting.
13. Loss of rural character of Silverado Canyon community.
14. Compromised pedestrian and bicyclist safety due to increased traffic.
15. Increased traffic on roads and highways, notably Santiago Canyon Road, Jamboree Dr., Chapman Ave., Katella Ave., and Newport Ave.

ported the irrigation controllers and pumps would need to be replaced in approximately one and one-half to two years. Two pumps for the lake that would need to be repaired or replaced would cost $2,000.00 each to repair or $4,000.00 each to replace. The pump at the dam was a special unit that would cost between $4,500.00 to $5,000.00 to replace. 16. Potential sacrifice of good 'green building' practices used in new home construction.
17. Effects on finances of City of Orange to provide and service infrastructure (streets, utilities etc.), relative to revenue from property taxes and developer fees. Taxpayers will make up the difference.
